Check with your city/county for upcoming event. There is a county near me in WY that will pay for the disposal of electronics. AN OLD FARMER and his friend sit drinking at a country store, outside the window, is a man who could not have been much older than twenty-five. He is the only occupant of the store, and is using a long-handled hook for opening the box of milk. The two men drink from the same glass of milk. The young man starts to break it up with his hook. The old man looks at him, and takes the hook from him. 'I'm so depressed,' says the young man. 'I was born in one of the most beautiful spots in the world,' says the old man. 'It's where I met my wife. I'm so depressed that my only son is going to die,' he says. The young man nods sympathetically. 'Where's your wife,' he asks. 'She's over there,' says the old man, pointing to a room on the other side of the store. 'My wife's going to leave me,' says the young man. 'I have a big problem.' 'Well,' says the old man, 'how big is your problem?' 'I'm going to lose my farm, and everything on it.' 'Well,' says the old man, 'there's a man on the road who can help you. He's been here for three days, and he's made the biggest mistake of his life. But he knows it, and he doesn't have the money to fix it.' The young man nods. 'My wife's divorcing me,' he says. 'Good,' says the old man. 'She wanted to stay home and raise a family. The one thing I always wanted was to have a farm. If I'd been a son, I would have done it. But now I'm too old.' 'Well,' says the young man, 'it's not that bad. You can always sell something 82157476af
