First of all, we need to go to the main menu and choose Edit > File > Open. Then, if we need to open a previously edited image, we must select it from the previous menu. For example: if we want to open the "Five Ways to Streamline Photoshop" image, we must click on "Five Ways to Streamline Photoshop" from the Open screen. Of course, we must import the image before editing. You can import the image from one of the following ways: Using "Open a New Image" or "Import from file..." commands Using the "File > Import" command Manually open the image file If the image is already open in the application, we must close it before opening again. Once closed, the image will remain open until you reopen it. After importing the image, we must fill the Document window. Q: Check if a form is ajax I've tried to put an if condition to check if a form is ajax, but it does not seem to work. Here is the php code. `if($_SERVER['REQUEST_METHOD']=='POST'){ echo "Ajax"; }` For testing purposes I put the complete php code in the if condition, it does not work. Am I missing something? A: It is possible to check if a form has been submitted using the `$_SERVER['HTTP_X_REQUESTED_WITH']` header.

if(strtolower($_SERVER['HTTP_X_REQUESTED_WITH']) == 'xmlhttprequest') { //Do Stuff }

'XMLHttpRequest' is the mime type that describes HTTP requests that use Ajax. A: You can check request header with x-requested-with. Try that. `$_SERVER["HTTP_X_REQUESTED_WITH"]`; Q: Can't declare variable? I have some issue to declare variable. I don't know why I can't do it. I can't use var, since I'm using webpack. `class MyComponent extends Component { render() { const { id, text } = this.props; console.log(id, text); return ({id} {text}); } }` webpack is giving an error like this: ERROR in ./src/App.jsx Module build failed: SyntaxError: Identifier 'id' has already been declared at new Script (bootstrap.js:600) at eval (bootstrap.js:601) at Module._compile (module.js:570) at eval (module.js:573)

Upper Marlboro, Md. — A leader of Maryland's Jewish community was arrested at his home in Washington County on Saturday night after a man reported that he had been the victim of a possible anti-Semitic attack. Eli Stutsman, a 42-year-old member of the board of the Central Maryland Jewish Federation, was charged with disorderly conduct after he became involved in a verbal argument with the alleged attacker at about 9:30 p.m. at his home in the 11000 block of Casper Lane, District of Columbia police said. Investigators from the Metropolitan Police Department were called to the scene and drove Mr. Stutsman to St. Elizabeth Medical Center in Silver Spring, Maryland, for an evaluation, police said. Officers discovered that Mr. Stutsman, who had been struck in the head, needed to be taken to Howard County General Hospital to receive treatment, police said.

Q: Typesetting with neogeography I would like to typeset parts of a paper that uses the neoscientific package to typeset figures and tables with geometric features. To better understand, let's take a simple figure:

\begin{figure} \begin{center} \begin{minipage}[t]{0.4\textwidth}
```

\includegraphics[scale=0.5]{figure1} \end{minipage} \end{center} \end{figure}

The problem is that I would like the numbers to overlap the edges of the rectangle. The current method works fine for small figures and large scales, but not if the size is in between (the number has a bit of white space to the left of the rectangle, and there is no way to make it larger to overlap). I tried using the pgf key "overlap" with the "shape=rectangle" option, but then the number disappears completely. The same problem happens with all the geometric features in neoscientific. A: It is common to use pgfplotsset to redefine the geometrical settings of a figure, thus re-enabling the psamestyle settings for math mode. Assuming your code looks similar to the following, this MWE \document
